ABSTRACT

An apparatus and method for managing data for a wireless device, which includes a first memory for storing received data of a wireless device,

5   a second memory for storing a network operational file, the operational file consisting of instructions for selecting a destination using a wireless module of the wireless device, and instruction steps for operating the network operational file for sending the received data using the wireless module to the selected destination.